

1.1 Introduction to the Guideline

In the evolving landscape of digital education, the E-Learning & Micro-Credential Unit (EMCU), located within the Centre for Professional Development (CPD), has established an official guideline for the use of H5P. This framework is designed to govern the creation and deployment of interactive content within Moodle, serving as the standard for all EMCU-supported courses. H5P is defined as an interactive content authoring tool integrated directly within the Moodle platform. Its primary function is to enable the creation of engaging, learner-centred activities that move beyond passive instruction. To ensure these activities are effective, this book outlines a standardised framework that addresses the pedagogical, technical, and ethical aspects of using H5P. This approach ensures that all content meets high standards of quality, consistency, and compliance with both institutional and national requirements.
